CROSS PLATFORM COLLABORATION

Cloudiway coexistence respond to the many challenging and complex scenarios encountered by large companies on a daily basis: mergers, and acquisitions and other significant changes within companies' information systems.

How to check the availability of colleagues that use different messaging systems?

How to share a domain name between two systems?

How sync address books between Google and Office 365?

Cloudiway Coexistence provides full interoperability between Google Apps for work and Exchange or Office 365. Cloudiway Coexistence enhances cross-platforms communication with no impact on day-to-day operations.

Users can collaborate with immediate details of free/busy information for a user, room or equipment.

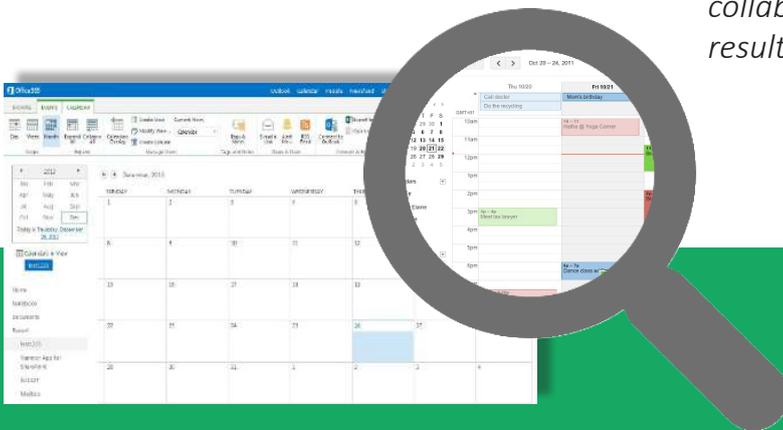

Sharing a domain between two system has never been so easy, with complete availability of the messaging system with transparent mail routing where users can communicate with each other as if they were using a single domain.

Additionally, address books are automatically synchronized in order to keep global address lists up to date in both environments.

A seamless way to migrate users from one environment to another or when organizations need to coexist on multiple platforms over a period of time.

"Cloudiway solves an important business problem for us by allowing Acxiom® Office 365 users to effectively work with and schedule meetings with Google users in our subsidiary company. It's invisible to the end-user, but the benefits have greatly reduced the back-and-forth communication necessary for collaboration and enabled better business results."
